Knutsen sells tanker for FPSO conversion

19 October 2006 14:36 GMT UPDATED 19 October 2006 14:36 GMT

By Trond Lillestolen Oslo

Norwegian shipowner Knutsen OAS Shipping has reportedly sold a 26-year-old tanker for conversion for offshore purposes at a price substantially over scrap value.

The 127,000-dwt shuttle tanker Kitty Knutsen (built 1980) has been sold to Singapore's Ezra Holdings for a price said to be $13.5m. Brokers suggest the scrap value of the ship is around $8m.

Ezra will convert the ship into a floating production, storage and offloading vessel (FPSO). The tanker will first be extended at a European yard and then be converted into an FPSO at a yard in Dubai.

Emas Offshore Construction & Production, a subsidiary of Ezra Holdings, has awarded Keppel Shipyard the contract to convert a 127,500dwt shuttle tanker into an FPSO. The LEWEK FPSO 1 is to be delivered in mid-2008 for deployment in the Gulf of Thailand. (www.oilonline.com/news - July 12, 2007)

EOC Ltd.'s first floating production storage offloading vessel (FPSO) was officially christened LEWEK ARUNOTHAI on June 21 at a naming ceremony held at Keppel Shipyard in Singapore.

FPSO LEWEK ARUNOTHAI was converted from oil tanker M.T. KITTY KNUTSEN. The first part of the vessel's refurbishment and life extension was carried out at Keppel's Subic Shipyard in the Philippines, while the engineering, procurement and topside fabrication were in progress in Singapore. The vessel then sailed to Keppel Shipyard to complete the remaining conversion and integration of topside works.

The vessel is Keppel's first FPSO conversion project for EOC. To date, Keppel Shipyard has completed 76 FPSO and FSO projects with six more in progress. Its sister yard, Keppel Singmarine, is building a 30,000 bhp Multi-Functional Support Vessel for EOC's parent company, Ezra Holdings.

LEWEK ARUNOTHAI is equipped with 725,000-barrel storage and capable of exporting 175 MMscf/d of gas. Sources said the vessel is expected to depart Singapore for Thailand in July to start a three-year firm charter with PTTEP's Gulf of Thailand Arthit North gas project. The vessel will be connected to up to 50 wells and is to produce about 120 MMscf/d to 150 MMscf/d of gas from the third quarter of 2008.

PTTEP is entitled to exercise an option to extend the FPSO charter by another two years. Additional gas produced from the FPSO will be supplied to PTTEP's parent company, PTT Plc over the next three years. The FPSO charter is valued at around US$400 million
