GENERAL VESSEL INFORMATION:

A panamax bulker delivered less than a year ago from China's Jiangnan Shipyard was stopped in the US in January after a series of cracks were discovered in the ship's hull. US Coast Guard (USCG) inspectors stopped the 74,000-dwt bulker BELMONTE (built 2004), which is owned by Germany's Komrowski group, during a stopover in Seattle. The USCG inspector's report said the Netherlands Antilles-flagged vessel's hull was cracked in multiple places, including a two metre open crack. Structural members at the bottom of the number four cargo/heavy weather ballast hold found damaged, according to the report.
